Assessment For Learning: Helping Students Succeed

With Rob Rankin

Assessment continues to play an increasingly important role in student success. Whether it be by involving students in the development of assessment tools or embedding assessment FOR learning practices in the classroom, the teacher is the key to improving student learning. This session will explore current assessment practices and how they fit into the effective Grade 4 – Grade 12 classroom. Rob Rankin will share assessment FOR learning from a classroom teacher's perspective.

Bio:

Rob Rankin has been an educator in British Columbia since 1974. He recently returned to the classroom at a secondary school after serving as Coquitlam School District's Assessment Coordinator for four years. He has presented in numerous districts throughout the province on how assessment can improve student learning and student success.
